ON CHARTER DAY

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB CELBRATES ITS BEGINNING WITH INTERESTING PROGRAM

The Tuesday Afternoon club celebrated Charter Day November 9 with a delightful program at Masonic hall. The room was prettily decorated for the occasion with large vases of chrysanthemums. Special guests of the club for the day were some of the original charter members of the club, the Mesdames Julia E. White, Chas. Bogue, William Doloff, John Hobbs, Edward Hollenbeck, Joseph Banker, Edith Nourse, Philip Parker and Miss Judson Harris, all of whom live in or near Glendale. Of the original eleven the address of Mrs. John Holland could not be ascertained, while the years have taken only one name from the roll, that of Mrs. Lew Wardell. A very interesting paper on "The Begininngs of the Tuesday Afternoon Club" was read by Mrs. Philip Parker

Mr. Cecil Crandall, ably accompanied by Miss Dorothy Lee, played very acceptably "Le' Gende" by Wieniauwski, generously followed by two encores "The Madrigal," Mr. Crandall's own splendid composition, and "Rondino" (on a theme by Beethoven) composed by Fritz Kreisler.

Mrs. Norma Rockhold Robbins, contralto and vocal instructor at the College of Music, University of Southern California, rendered in a delightfully artistic way three groups of comparative songs, the first the antique classic of Salvatore Rosa, "Star Vicius," and in contrast with it Leoncavallo's modern "Matinata." Salvatore Rosa is one of the so-called "amateur musicians" who have composed what we know today as grand opera. The second group of songs contrasted the lullaby of the oriental with our west lullaby in the songs, Ware's "Hindu Slumber Song" and Nevin's "Blackfoot Indian Lullaby." In the third group Mrs. Robbins gave two interesting interpretations of Musetta's song in La Boheme, the first by Puccini, which is the better known aria, and the second by Leoncavallo. Mrs. Robbins was accompanied by Mrs. Leroy Bosserman, who is a musician of rare talent.

The second part of the afternoon's program was presented by Mrs. Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith, vice president of the Los Angeles center of the National Drama League, and head of the Friday Morning Drama club of Los Angeles. Mrs. Goldsmith held the closest attention of her audience in illuminating general talk on the drama. The nature of the Drama League was ably explained in its relation to acted drama and drama of print, or literary drama. Mrs. Goldsmith maintains that the study of the printed drama is not only educational in value, but a great joy and pleasure. Illustrating her point that the vital questions of the day are dealt with in innumerable plays, Mrs. Goldsmith hastily reviewed the theme of the desire of women for independence of thought and spirit, and the freedom to be herself, as portrayed in the French play, "The Escape," in Ibsen's "The Doll House," and the frightful tragedy portrayed in Galsworthy's "The Fugitive." Members of the Tuesday Afternoon club will be interested to know that "The Fugitive" will be presented before the Literary Section of the club by Mrs. Wayland Brown on March 7. Mrs. Goldsmith closed the afternoon's program with a delightful reading of the clever one act play of "Rosalind" by Sir James Barry.

Refreshments were served during the social hour by the hospitality committee, Mrs. R. A. Peterson, November sub-chairman.

During the business session of the club a note was read inviting the members of the club to attend a reception to be given by the Los Angeles district board in honor of Mrs. Edward Dexter Knight, president of the California State Federation, and Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles, California's delegate for the national presidency, November 19, 3 to 5 o'clock, in the Friday Morning clubhouse, Los Angeles.

Announcement was made of the Costantino concert to be given November 26 at the Palace Grand theater, under the auspices of the music section of the club for the benefit of the Children's hospital and Maternity cottage.

Interesting reports were given by Mrs. Harriet M. White of the meeting of the Tropico Thursday Afternoon club at which members of the Glendale Tuesday club were invited guests, and Mrs. Albert Pearce, who spoke of the Reciprocity day of the Los Angeles Travel club.

Section meetings were announced as follows: Music section at the home of Mrs. E. W. Kinney, 1223 West Seventh street, Friday, November 12, at 2:30 p. m.; literary section at the home of Mrs. Charles Hutchinson, Tuesday, Nov. 16, Poetry day.

The next meeting of the club will be in honor of the husbands of the members and will be held in the evening of November 23. A dinner will be served at 6:30, followed at 8 o'clock by a concert program by the Pacific Mutual Glee club, Horatio Cogswell, director.

FOE TO MOSQUITO

J. C. SHERER TELLS HOW STICKLEBACK CONTROLS MOSQUITO IN INFESTED REGIONS

"There is not much danger of the recent rains helping the mosquito to breed in Glendale," said Mr. J. C. Sherer, city clerk, when the effect of the rains was being discussed. "For one thing it is too late in the season; for another there are very few mosquitoes in Glendale. As a matter of fact there have never been many mosquitoes in Glendale. The long dry season makes it practically impossible for them to breed here, and where you now and then find a stray mosquito or two they have come from stagnant pools or where water has been allowed to accumulate.

"How great a blessing this is is well known to those who have come from states in some of the eastern sections where the mosquito is a terror to evil and good alike. New Jersey has an unenviable reputation in that respect and there is a tale extant of how a swarm of mosquitoes once cleared out a whole town there, the inhabitants being glad to leave everything and escape by the last train that drew out of the infested spot.

"There is really no exaggeration in that story and it can be paralleled in California at Bay Point in the San Francisco region, on Suisun bay. There the mosquitoes had become unbearable at one time and two years ago concerted effort was made to get rid of them. The large lumber mill in the district had been obliged to close down occasionally on account of this pest, and when it did run the efficiency of the men and women who worked there was much reduced on account of the necessity of continually fighting mosquitoes. Herds of cattle which took refuge in the water to escape the stings of this pestiferous insect were drowned by the rising tide.

"Now the town and the mill are practically free from mosquitoes and every one testifies to the great success of the war waged against this pest. The cost of the work for the first year was $500 and for the second year $200.

"It is interesting to note that what worked this wonderful change was the stickleback. It was some time before it was understood that the introduction of the little stickleback minnow into marshes where the mosquito abounds soon clears every one of them out of that region.

"Much work is now being done to introduce the stickleback into regions where the mosquito is a pest, and where tide pools lie far in and the stickleback that ventures there at high water is usually left high and dry when the water dries up, ditches are now being cut so as to open up communication with the sea.

"At the last session of the legislature a law was passed under which districts can be formed in any part of the state by petition of a certain percentage of the citizens. This was designed to facilitate the extermination of mosquitoes, flies and other insects. The law also provides for the government and operation of districts and for the levying and collection of taxes for the purpose.

"While the malarial mosquito may not be a problem in Glendale, there are places where Glendale people go in summer where the pest is a very palpable reality. This mosquito is a serious menace to the health of the people. The "anopheles" mosquito breeds in the rice fields and the rice fields are growing in extent in California. The present rice field sections are the worst malarial regions of California. Oil cannot be used over the rice fields and there the mosquito breeds at ease.

"It is in such places as those that the little stickelback, or perhaps even better in those regions the top minnow can be introduced with great effect. The control of the mosquito and the final extermination of that pest would go far to making this earth a physical paradise."

TO RAISE A MILLION

SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTIST SABBATH SCHOOL WORKING FOR FOREIGN MISSIONS

LOMA LINDA, Cal. Nov. 10.—One million dollars for foreign missions through Seventh-day Adventist Sabbath schools alone between now and the spring of 1917, when the next general conference will be held, is the proposition placed before the convention of conference heads and mission representatives in session here by Mrs. Flora Plummer, Sabbath school secretary, this morning. Hearty support was given to this plan by the convention members. While it took the Adventist Sabbath schools 25 years to raise the first million dollars, and three years and three months to raise the second million, it now proposed to raise a million in one year and nine months. This gives an idea of the tremendous strides being made by the denomination in foreign mission work.

"It is 63 years since Elder James White sat by the roadside, and, using his lunch basket as a table, wrote the first series of Sabbath school lessons for this denomination," said Mrs. Plummer, in submitting her biennial report. "The seed thus planted took deep root, and today the influence of Seventh-day Adventist Sabbath schools extends to all parts of the earth, reaching heathen lands as well as civilized nations. At the close of 1914 we had 4,936 Sabbath schools, of which 2,169 were outside the United States. From the close of 1912 we made a gain of 486 schools. The home department, maintained for the isolated, has 7000 members."

War, while presenting many problems and difficulties, has not financially embarrassed the general conference of the Adventists, according to the report of Elder W. T. Knox, treasurer of the denomination, submitted this morning. He said that at the beginning of the European war he wrote to all the mission fields, which were receiving large appropriations, asking them to what extent they could curtail their expenditures, if necessary. "Although they responded liberally, only $3800 curtailment of work in the mission fields was found necessary on account of the European difficulties," Treasurer Knox continued.

The sustentation fund for the support of aged and sick ministers occupied the attention of the convention this morning, $13,205.87 having been spent in this way during 1914. "The increase in sustentation fund which has been necessary shows to us that before this provision was made there was much suffering, both mental and physical," said A. G. Daniells, president of the World Conference. "We must continue to maintain this fund, and every local conference is under obligation to give it support."

Treasurer Knox' report showed the receipts of the general conference for 1914 to have been $643,556.03, of which $614,872.23 was raised by the 20-cents-a-week fund. Of this fund all over 15 cents a week per member for North America was turned back to institutions which are educating missionaries, and $103,335.06 was returned in this way. The total expenditures for the year were $632,130.16.

Prof. Frederick Griggs, educational secretary, reporting for Adventist school work in the entire world, mentioned the growth of mission schools, where natives are taught the trades, in addition to the common branches. Such schools had a total enrollment at the close of 1914 of 11,156, an increase of 1546, he said, over the previous year, and were employing 401 teachers. The total number of schools of all grades maintained throughout the world by the Adventists at the close of 1914 was 928, with an enrollment of 31,896, and a property valuation of $2,319,759. These schools employ 1731 teachers. Uniform courses of study, a uniform grading system and the introduction of such uniform text books as may be found feasible are aims of the educational department, Prof. Griggs said. He urged the ministers to enroll in the Fireside Correspondence school for advance work, suggesting it as a good plan for ministers to be studying a language.

Borneo, the land of the "head hunters," was visited by President Daniells on his trip through the Orient. The missionaries he met and the conditions he found in the various countries he traversed during a year in the far east were described by him in a stereopticon lecture in the church here last night While the young braves among the mountain tribes of Borneo still win their sweethearts by exhibiting the number of heads they have been able to take the practice of head hunting is prohibited by the British government on the coast and missionaries are safe from such danger, according to President Daniells.

Many relatives of missionaries whose faces were shown on the screen sat in the audience during the meeting The Malay peninsula, the Philippine islands, Japan, Korea and Manchuria were among the countries visited by Elder Daniells, and described last night. Success is attending missionary effort everywhere in non-Christian lands where workers have entered, he said, but urged the crying need of more preachers, medical missionaries and teachers, as the work some are called upon to perform in tropical climates is more than human endurance can bear.

FAIR CLAY PRODUCTS

H. E. BETZ FINDS SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA ABREAST OF EXHIBITS AT EXPOSITION

"In building products the San Francisco exposition had very little that was new to teach the builders and contractors of Southern California," said H. E. Betz, of 124 North Kenwood, to a representative of the Glendale Evening News "In the Clay Products building I found little that was new and nothing that is not now in use in Southern California where the builders always keep up to date on construction material.

"In the Clay Products building the great feature was a brick and hollow tile building, with all the modern features. This was a 6-room affair. It was neatly designed, but did not have in it a feature that the builders of So. California have not been embodying for years in their buildings. The man in charge of this construction was an old Chicago builder. He was selling plans for this house and evidently thought that he had something new. He seemed doubtful when I told him that we had been using that method of construction for years in this end of California.

"Southern California is really up-to-date in all matters of this kind. Pressed brick exteriors with hollow tile partitions and clay tile roofs in mission style have been common here for many years. Indeed what was really up to date in the Clay Products section was the exhibit of the Los Angeles Brick company, which in variety of form and design surpassed anything else among the exhibits. This company had the nicest display of all we saw. They had common brick, pressed brick, ruffled and rug brick, and all manner of clay tiles for roofs. This was particularly interesting as all this work is done in Los Angeles. There was nothing in the exhibit that came up to this.

"I left Glendale a little more than a week ago, along with Mrs. Betz. We were charmed with San Francisco and enjoyed the fair very much. There was much that would be extremely interesting could one only have time to study it. It would require several visits of many days to the fair to see it to advantage. Still even a few days spent there are useful We were in the grounds on San Francisco day, when 348,000 people were present. We found it impossible to do anything more than move about with the crowds.

"I think it is a good idea to keep the San Diego fair open during the coming year. The fair will bring a great many people to Southern California and will benefit this part of the state a great deal. It is practically certain that a great many of the exhibits in San Francisco will be taken to San Diego and many of the concessions on the zone will also go there All this will benefit the San Diego fair and will attract people to this part of the country, many of whom no doubt will stay."

RECLAIMING THE PHYSICAL WORLD

Those who have traveled in foreign countries will recall the wonderful degree of cultivation to which many countries have attained. There are the trimly kept fields, and forests and lanes of England; its ancient lawns that have taken a thousand years to bring to their present stage of velvety smoothness; its fields shut in by neat fences or even by carefully built stone walls; its general air of having reached a stage where every bird and beast can be counted and where no insect pest can stray—all telling of a time when the whole world will attain a similar degree of cultivation and all insect pests will be banished.

Similar conditions prevail in France and Germany. To be sure there is not the same climate to breed the mosquito and so that interesting insect is not found in those countries; but they have had and still have in some places insect pests that are bad in their own degree.

In the heather-clad hills of Scotland clouds of infinitesimal insects called "midges," which are in reality a close cousin of the mosquito, render life a burden. They are so small that a cloud of them looks like a wisp of smoke and yet their bite stings like a redhot iron. In the hills they become as great a pest as the mosquito is in the northern woods of Wisconsin or Michigan, in the interior swamp of Grand Island in the Niagara River, or in Alaska.

It has been well said that man in his early struggle with nature was occupied with the larger animals. His foes were the mastodon, the sabre-toothed tiger, the gaunt wolf and the serpents. Now he has succeeded in nearly exterminating those creatures and by his use of the modern rifle so subdued them that they are no longer eager to attack him, but slink away from his presence as do the fox and other small creatures.

Man's war is with the mosquito and still further with the infinitesimal germ which the mosquito bears with him. His war is against the small things of the world and bit by bit he is subduing them. When the Americans experimented in Cuba with the "anopheles" and "stegomyia" mosquitoes, which carry respectively the infection of malarial and yellow fever, they began a warfare that is likely to deliver the world from the grip of those deadly diseases.

It is manifest in the interesting story of the war against mosquitoes in the Suisun bay region, told by City Clerk Sherer, in another part of this issue of The Glendale Evening News, that the mosquito can be exterminated and is being slowly killed out. The mosquito cannot breed without water and stagnant water. In the vast multitude of pools left by the melting of the snow all over the tundra of Alaska mosquitoes breed to an extent that throws New Jersey and Wisconsin marshes in the shade. The extraordinary vitality of insect life can be seen in the fact that the winter cold of Alaska, sometimes 60 and 75 degrees below zero, does not kill off the mosquito or for that matter even the common fly.

Nothing can destroy this pest except repeated covering of the stagnant pools with a film of coal oil or where that is not possible by the introduction of the stickleback or the top minnow, which feeds on the mosquito larva and exterminates it. In Alaska, fortunately, the summer season is short and the mosquito goes into winter quarters very speedily, otherwise it would be next to impossible to live there. By and by when man has leisure to do for himself the things he ought to do the tundra will be drained and the mosquito will be exterminated. Man will reclaim the world some day and will give it at last a full semblance to what is told of the ancient Eden.

LONDON IN WAR TIME

London is incorrigible. It entirely refuses to refrain from seeing the humorous side of its own inconveniences. The steady darkening of its streets has served the purpose of the cartoonist as valiantly as the air raid charts or the removal of railway facilities. These cartoonists have now invented the umbrella torch for hailing taxis. They have discovered the man who seeks to learn coins by touch, and is faced with the horrible necessity of deciding whether he is parting with a sovereign or shilling, without being able to see it. They have utilized the familiar "Fares please!" of the conductor on the bus top, on a night of Stygian darkness. They have even depicted the earnest efforts of the pedestrian to find the curb with the timely aid of a match. Finally they have levied toll on the policeman, who dispensing his graphic information of "First on left, second on right," finds himself suddenly faced with the altogether unexpected further query, "But where on earth is the left, and where is the right?"

"A storm is raging round the foreign office," wrote a prominent London journalist recently. "But we know," came the reply from an equally prominent journalist, "the Aeolus who raises the storms, and we can observe his apparatus at work." A little more of such observation on the part of the general public is something much to be desired. The famous article, for instance, which Bismarck commanded Busch to write for the Kolnische Zeitung would have lost much of its force if the method of writing could have been held under observation. When Busch had evolved the article, dated from Paris, in accordance as he imagined with his instructions, the Iron Chancellor would have none of it. No Frenchman, he declared, ever thought in such a well ordered fashion. So finally, says Busch, Count Bismarck dictated the greater part of the reply himself. It began: "Whoever has had an opportunity of observing here in Paris." Apparatus enough, and Aeolus in excelsis.—Christian Science Monitor.

King Peter of Servia had a somewhat sinister connection with the murder of his predecessor, Alexander; but that seems to have been forgotten in his heroic stand against the Austrians. He is now a somewhat pathetic figure carried in a litter at the head of the retreating Servians; but he is none the less valiant and none the less an inspiration to his valiant followers.

YOSHIHITO'S CORONATION

Emperor Yoshito's coronation in Kyoto, Japan, today was the first coronation in 25 centuries that representatives of the people have been permitted to attend. The Japanese people are greatly pleased.

Today's rather simple and brief ceremony, marking the accession of Yoshihito to the place handed down by "divine right" from his forefathfathers who were emperors "before the dawn of history," is the climax of the six weeks' accession program for which the Diet appropriated $2,000,000.

Members of the court, ministers of state, members of the diplomatic corps and members of the diet, representing the people, attired in the gorgeous silver and golden ceremonial robes of the ancients, were nowhere to be seen when the foreign representatives were heralded to their seats before the imperial scarlet canopy to the sound of flutes and drums, hidden in Shunkyoden temple.

It may be several hours before the signal will be given and the doors of the sanctuary, where the jewel, the sword and the mirror are kept, are opened and the offering spread before the altar. Then will enter the emperor, followed by the princes of the blood, ministers and coronation commissioners. After a brief silence the emperor will read an address to the gathered spirits of his dead ancestors, telling them he has assumed the place they left for him.

Those at the coronation then will do homage to the new emperor and he will sit down upon the seat of the Son of Heaven. Later he will publicly proclaim his accession to his subjects generally. Days of feasting and celebration will follow the ceremony proper of today.

Some one informed those present that Miss Smith was also a birthday chi'd of the same date. Assorted cosmos blossoms and long-stemmed chrysanthemums beautified the rooms turned over to the guests present.

VALLEY VIEW

J. H. Springer of 1630 Oak street has had a large garage built on the rear of his lot, his father, an expert old-time carpenter from the east, now visiting him, and his father-in-law, J. H. Berry, of 541 Orange St., doing the work.

A garage is being erected at Mrs. Cora Deacon's place, 1615 Oak St.

O. L. Kilborn of Kilborn & Peter's store, 1601 View street, enjoyed a brief visit Sunday afternoon from a boyhood friend and schoolmate, Geo. M. Arbuckle, of Iditarod, Alaska. He left home when 20 years old, worked as a typesetter in many cities of the west and midd'e west and finally started a paper in Skagway, going later to Iditarod. The subscription price of his paper, a weekly, is $10 gold per year, or 25c a copy, and he has a very large advertising patronage. He uses a Washington hand press to print the paper but has a Mergenthaler linotype for type setting. He says that the mercury has rarely fallen below 50 degrees at Iditarod, but that further north he has experienced 72 degrees below zero. Once, going down the mighty Yukon in a steamer, when just within the Arctic circle, he saw the sun swing around the horizon for many days without dipping out of sight.

A family by the name of Cunningham has moved into Mrs. Halliday's house at 1612 Vine St.

Chicken thieves are still busy in this section. Thirty fowls were stolen from Hoffmans, on Oak street, recently.

The Mackie house at 1522 West Fifth has been repaired and painted within and without and is now in shape for renting.

Reserved seat tickets for the Constantino entertainment to be held at the Palace Grand theater Nov. 26 are now on sale at the Palace Grand.

JAPANESE ROOSTERS

What would you think of having for a pet a rooster with a tail 10 feet long? asks a writer for the Montreal Star.

In the poultry exhibit at the Panama-Pacific International exposition are three Japanese roosters with just such peculiarities.

That the beauty of their rare tail feathers may not be impaired, the birds are exhibited behind glass, each cock preched on a shelf near the top of a case six feet high, the precious tail hanging down behind and trailing in curved folds upon the floor.

Their food is unhulled rice and greens, and they require a great deal of water. Once a day they are taken out for a walk, with the tails carefully done up in paper bags.

Musical Japanese names have been bestowed upon these curious roosters, Haku, meaning white, to one; Shirafuji, white chrysanthemum, to the second; and to the third, Akazasa, which is the poetic way of saying "red bamboo leaves."
